The FELASA Award will be judged by the FELASA Executive Committee, whose decision is final

FELASA established in 2007 a triennial Award to recognize a significant contribution towards laboratory animal science through publications and engagement that could lead or has led to changes or improvements into how animals are utilized in research, testing or education that is consistent with FELASA's aims and objectives.

The recipient(s) of the 2016 FELASA Award will be required to present the results of their work at a platform session during the FELASA 2016 Congress, 13 - 16 June in Brussels, Belgium (www.felasa.eu), at which they will receive the award, an inscribed plaque, and a prize of € 2,000.

Nominations should include:

- A curriculum vitae with refereed publications
- Full details of the scientific work including any related publications
- The contribution the work has made to the stated objectives of the award
